Figure 1. The effect of the number of trials on the number of correct responses. The number of correct responses was plotted against the number of trials for each condition. The number of correct responses increased with the number of trials for all conditions. The number of correct responses was highest for the condition with the highest number of trials (10 trials) and lowest for the condition with the lowest number of trials (2 trials).

NOTE

THIS BIBLIOGRAPHY, which is based, by kind permission of Mr. J. C. SQUIRE, upon one which originally appeared in the London Mercury, aims at completeness only as regards first editions printed in the British Isles. Occassionally, however, another edition has been mentioned in a note. Considerations of size have made it impossible to record, in this pamphlet, all the revisions which so many of Mr. Moore's books have undergone.

The measurements in this list are given to the nearest eighth of an inch, and are those of the page and not of the binding. Pages given in brackets are those of which no account has been taken in the printed pagination of the book in question.

The compiler's and publishers' thanks are due to Mr. MOORE for the information and assistance, which he has so kindly given, and also to Mr. HARRY FURNISS, Mr. T. J. WISE, Mr. JOHN L. BALDERSTON, Mr. MORTON H. SANDS, Mr. A. EDWARD NEWTON, Mr. JAMES F. DRAKE, MESSRS. HEINEMANN, MESSRS. WERNER LAURIE, MESSRS. T. FISHER UNWIN, Mr. WALTER T. SPENSER, and MESSRS. R. FLETCHER, Ltd., for information or for permission to examine certain books.

PREFATORY LETTER

Dear Mr. Williams,

I have looked through the Bibliography, which you have made of my writings, and feel as much shocked at my literary activities as I am at your industry in tracing everything that I have written, even to the point of discovering the title of a comedy that I wrote in the Hôtel de Russie, after making at the table d'hôte the acquaintance of Bernard Lopez, a writer who, if he did not always write wisely, collaborated with wisdom—for there was no great man in France with whom he had not written a play, not only with Dumas and Scribe, who collaborated with everybody, but with great French poets, Gautier, Banville, and that strange and interesting writer Gerard de Nerval. It was Lopez who supplied me with the scenario of Martin Luther, or, shall I say, with instructions regarding the disposition of the acts; and so it falls out that, though I missed making Gerard's acquaintance, I at least knew his collaborator.

My chattering pen has led me far away from Worldliness, a comedy that Lopez said disappointed him, the plot having deflected; it should have been, according to Lopez, Mr. Goldstick's plan to marry his mistress to his friend Mr. —— alas! my memory fails me.

Very sincerely yours,
